Lincoln's Love Affairs

By Ward Hill Lamon,
Lincoln's Friend and Biographer

And His Early Experiences as a Lawmaker

CHAPTER V.

Curious Confession From Lincoln or Mary Owens Affair.

AFTER his second meeting with Mary Mr. Lincoln had little time to prosecute his addresses in person, for early in December he was called away to his seat in the legislature; but, if his tongue was silent in the cause, his pen was busy.

During the session of the legislature of 1836-37 Mr. Lincoln made the acquaintance of Mrs. O. H. Browning, whose husband was also a member. The acquaintance ripened into friendship, and that winter and the next Mr. Lincoln spent a great deal of time in social intercourse with the Brownings. Mrs. Browning knew nothing as yet of the affair with Miss Owens, but as the latter progressed and Lincoln became more and more involved she noticed the ebb of his spirits and often rallied him as the victim of some secret but consuming passion. With this for his excuse, Lincoln wrote her after the adjournment of the legislature a full and connected account of the manner in which he had latterly been making "a fool of" himself. For many reasons the publication of this letter is an extremely painful duty. If it could be withheld and the act decently reconciled to the conscience of a biographer professing to be honest and candid it should never see the light in these pages. Its grotesque humor, its coarse exaggerations in describing the person of a lady whom the writer was willing to marry, its imputation of toothless and weather-beaten old age to a woman really young and handsome, its utter lack of that delicacy of tone and sentiment which one naturally expects a gentleman to adopt when he thinks proper to discuss the merits of his late mistress—all these and its defective orthography it would certainly be more agreeable to suppress than to publish. But if we begin by omitting or mutilating a document which sheds so broad a light upon one part of his life and one phase of his character why may we not do the like as fast and as often as the temptations arise? And where shall the process cease? A biography worth writing at all is worth writing fully and honestly, and the writer who suppresses or mangles the truth is no better than he who bears false witness to some other capacity.

Do You Think For Yourself?

Or, do you open your mouth like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you?

There is an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and sickness, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest medicine of known composition, sold by druggists for the cure of woman's ills.

The makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible endorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper.

The formula of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will bear the most critical examination of medical experts, for it contains no alcohol, narcotics, harmful, or habit-forming drugs, and no agent enters into it that is not fully recommended by the most advanced and leading medical teachers and authorities of their several schools of practice. These authorities recommend the ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of exactly the same ailments for which this world-famous medicine is advised.

No other medicine for woman's ills has any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has received, in the unqualified recommendation of each of its several ingredients by scores of leading medical men of all the schools of practice. Is such an endorsement not worthy of your consideration?

A booklet of ingredients, with numerous authoritative professional endorsements by the leading medical authorities of this country, will be mailed free to any one sending name and address with request for same. Address Dr. R. W. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

But, shocking to relate, she answered, "No." At first I supposed she did it through an affectation of modesty, which I thought but ill became her under the peculiar circumstances of her case, but on my renewal of the charge I found she repelled it with greater firmness than before. I tried it again and again, but with the same success, or, rather, with the same want of success.

I finally was forced to give it up, at which I very unexpectedly found myself mortified almost beyond endurance. I was mortified, it seemed to me, in a hundred different ways. My vanity was deeply wounded by the reflection that I had so long been too stupid to discover her intentions and at the same time never doubting that I understood them perfectly, and also that she, whom I had taught myself to believe nobody else would have, had actually rejected me with all my fancied greatness. And, to cap the whole, I then for the first time began to suspect that I was really a little in love with her. But let it all go. I'll try and outlive it. Others have been made fools of by the girls, but this can never with truth be said of me. I most emphatically in this instance made a fool of myself. I have now come to the conclusion never again to think of marrying, and for this reason: I can never be satisfied with any one who would be a foolhead enough to love me.

When you receive this, write me a long yarn about something to amuse me. Give my respects to Mr. Brownings' Your sincere friend, A. LINCOLN.

Mrs. O. H. Browning.

GIRL-WIFE'S STORY

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw Continues Narrative of Innermost Chapters of Her Life.

TATTLE OF TENDERLOIN

It Is Thus That District Attorney Jerome Characterizes Evidence of State Witness in Thaw Case.

"Is There No Limit?" He Cried, "to the Asperations That Are to Be Cast Upon Stanford White?"

New York, Feb. 9.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was the central figure at her husband's trial again yesterday. She was still on the stand—her direct examination unfinished—when the usual week-end adjournment until Monday morning was taken. Picking up the threads of her life's story where she had dropped them the evening before, the girl-wife of the defendant—always, she declared, telling her story just as she had related it to Harry Thaw from time to time—brought the narrative down to her wedding in Pittsburgh on April 4, 1905, and their return to New York following a honeymoon trip in the West. She declared that she had heard White call to her on the street once after this and that on another occasion when she passed him in a cab she noticed his cab turn around and follow her to a doctor's office, where she was going to have her throat treated.

Mrs. Thaw had taken up the story at the time of her return from Europe in October, 1903, following her refusal of Thaw's offer of marriage on the grounds which she related Thursday. On Monday she may be called upon to finish the relation of the events which it is claimed brought on the explosive impulse in the diseased brain of the defendant and caused the killing of Stanford White.

While yesterday's testimony was lacking in the personal quality which made Thursday's recital so dramatic, so compelling, enthralling and pathetic, it served to clear away some of the doubts and inferences which remained from incomplete details. There were repetitions, too, at the suggestion of counsel, and incidents which had not been gone over in the first years of Mrs. Thaw's acquaintance with Stanford White were brought out in completion of the life story.

District Attorney Jerome, who had throughout silently listened to the young wife's statements, sent a thrill of excitement through the courtroom late in the day by jumping to his feet and vigorously protesting against "this defamation of the dead."

"Is there no limit," he exclaimed, "to the asperations that are to be cast upon this man? Your honor will know I cannot, under the law, controvert any statement this witness might make against the memory of Stanford White."

In tones bitterly sarcastic, Mr. Jerome spoke of "this tattle of the Tenderloin" and declared that the court had the right to limit such testimony "until competent evidence has been adduced to show that this man is, or was, of unsound mind. We don't know whether this defendant ever was insane," he concluded.

The question which called out the vehement protest was addressed to Mrs. Thaw by Mr. Delmas, and its purport was whether Harry Thaw had at any time told her about "other girls who had met a fate similar to yours at the hands of that man."

"What man?" snapped Mr. Jerome. "Stanford White," replied Mr. Delmas with the coolness of voice and manner characteristic of him; and then he added, still in the same tone, "who else?"

Justice Fitzgerald held that the district attorney's suggestion was a good one, and he thought the defense should lay a broader foundation to show insanity before proceeding along the lines suggested by Mr. Delmas's question. "We will proceed to do this as soon as possible," announced the attorney. Mrs. Thaw declared that Stanford White, during the year which followed her experience in the room of the mirrored walls, repeatedly sought to have her visit him alone. "I told Harry," she said, "that Mr. White had begged me, had pleaded and cried and scolded, and done everything he could to make me come to see him alone. I refused, and he told me I was cruel and that I was as cold as a fish, and not a human being. I told Mr. White I did not care to trust him."

After her return from Europe and during the months she would not see Harry Thaw "because of the dreadful things Mr. White and his friends told me about him," she declared Thaw accused her of improper relations with the architect. "I told him it was a lie and that I had not," she testified with an emphatic show of feeling.

The defense had Mrs. Thaw tell of another incident which has been cited in her life—her acquaintance with "Jack" Barrymore, the actor. Mr. Barrymore was in the courtroom one day during the early part of the trial, at the instance of the district attorney, it was said. Mr. Delmas asked Mrs. Thaw to tell what she had told Mr. Thaw of her acquaintance with the actor.

She said she had first met Barrymore at a party given by Stanford

White the year following her introduction to the architect. "I thought him very nice," she frankly said, "and one day at Mr. White's studio he said, 'Evelyn, will you marry me?'"

"I said, 'I don't know.'"

"He asked me a second time; again I said, 'I don't know,' and everybody laughed. Mr. White told me I would be very foolish to marry Mr. Barrymore, and my mother said so, too, and we all quarreled, and the upshot of the whole thing was that Mr. White said I ought to be sent away to school, and I was, to New Jersey."

Mr. Hartridge of Thaw's counsel, said after court adjourned that Mrs. Thaw would go on with her direct

CLIFFORD W. HARTTRIDGE.

[Of Thaw's counsel.] examination Monday morning. Just what will be the nature of District Attorney Jerome's cross-examination is mere conjecture. It is said that he may try in some way to attack her credibility, probably as to her ability to remember other things as well as she has the stories she has declared she told Harry Thaw.

Paris Wants to Testify.

Paris, Feb. 9.—The newspapers of Paris are devoting much space to the Thaw trial in New York, and as a result a number of persons are anxious to testify to Thaw's alleged escapades in Paris, which they declare can only be explained on the ground that he was insane.

PAPERS MISSING

Evidence Against American Ice Company Mysteriously Disappears.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 9.—All the evidence on which was based the complaint of Attorney General Mayer against the American Ice company for dissolution of an alleged monopoly of the ice business, served on Dec. 20, has disappeared from the attorney general's office and cannot be found. This announcement was made last night by Attorney General W. S. Jackson. He also made public affidavits of employees of the office which show that a part of the papers were known to be missing late in December, before the retirement of Mayer, but that the disappearance was not known to Jackson until early in January, when after he had assumed office, he took up the case.

Mr. Jackson said that he has served a demand upon the American Ice company for access to its books and records so as to replace the lost evidence and that the company had asked until Monday to answer.

BLIND TIGER HIT

The House Advances the Bill Designed to Restrict the Brute's Doings.

AFTER EXCITING DEBATE

The Measure to Regulate "Blind Tigers" in Indiana Was Sent to Engrossment in House.

In the Senate the Gainard Private Banking Bill Was Passed by a Vote of 43 to 2.

Indianapolis, Feb. 9.—The senate and house took a recess today that will last until Monday afternoon, when the grind will be resumed. Although only a few bills have been passed, scores have been killed, and it seems that this session is to be noted for killing incipient laws.

The debate over the "blind tiger" bill, which was advanced in the house, proved to be the most interesting and exciting feature of the entire session. The house was crowded with people who were interested in it in some manner. Two or three hundred druggists were packed behind the railing surrounding the members. They were bitterly opposed to the bill on the ground that it would make it illegal for them to sell liquor without a renewal of prescriptions, and that it would compel a trial court to imprison a druggist for violating the law. They wanted the word "shall" stricken out and "may" inserted, so that a judge could use his discretion whether he would assess a fine or affix a jail sentence. They also wanted permission to sell in quantities of more than a quart. Amendments to this effect were offered by Representative Keller of Indianapolis, but they were all tabled by a vote of 57 to 32. This indicated that the backers of the bill were numerous. Many members of the Anti-Saloon League were present to work for the bill. Representative Volz of Indianapolis started the debate with a motion to strike out the enacting clause of the bill. The motion was tabled by a vote of 73 to 13. Representative Fitch obtained an amendment that provided that the finding of liquor in a drug store or physician's office shall not be regarded as prima facie evidence that it is being sold illegally.

Representative Keller's amendments on behalf of the druggists precipitated a lively debate. Chairman Morton of the committee on public morals moved that Mr. Keller's motion be tabled. Representative Silmp of Washington offered to amend the bill so that in fixing the punishment for violation of the law the court could either send the defendant to prison or merely assess a fine. Representative Hottel of Washington objected to this. He said that no druggist who wanted to conduct his business honestly would oppose the law giving the court authority to send violators to prison. Representative White, Democrat, said that the opposition of the druggists indicated that they wanted to violate the law. The bill was finally advanced to engrossment.

A sharp word battle between Senator Ganland and Senator Springer, in which accusations of broken pledges were hurled thick and fast, marked the discussion of the Ganland private banking bill, which was passed in the senate yesterday afternoon by a vote of 43 to 2. The shippers' bill extending the powers of the railroad commission will be reported favorably Monday.

Charged With Bigamy. Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 9.—When Ralph Montrose, brakeman, was arrested here at the home of his parents on a charge of bigamy, preferred at Clayton, near St. Louis, he said that his first wife had died two years before the Clayton marriage. Since his arrival at Clayton he has denied that, as Charles Wilkes, he was married there last May to Louise Bennett of East St. Louis. It is his first wife, whose home is in Greenville, Ill., who makes the charge. She says he left her two years ago and that recently in an accidental meeting with the Clayton wife she learned that the man who was married to both of them is Ralph Montrose of Terre Haute.

Accused of Shielding Vice.

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 9.—As the result of the report of an investigating committee, Judge W. A. Funk of the St. Joseph circuit court has appointed a committee of attorneys of the St. Joseph county bar to institute disbarment proceedings against former prosecuting attorney George A. Kurtz. Members of the committee say that the recommendation is based upon affidavits and evidence setting forth the allegation that Kurtz received fees to protect vice. According to the committee, saloon men, gamblers and proprietors of ill resorts testified to making monthly contributions, so as to escape arrest and prosecution.

To Discuss Jap Question.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Mayor Schmitt and the school board of San Francisco, who were summoned here to discuss the Japanese school question with President Roosevelt, have arrived in Washington and will be received by the president today.

Annual White Sale BEGINS MONDAY, FEB. 11

Embroideries, Laces, Muslin Underwear, White Goods, Muslin, Sheetings

THE most important event of the year—and one for which we prepare carefully and well—has its beginning Monday. Rarely, if ever, have conditions been so favorable to the consumer as those under which the sale will be conducted. Of chief importance, the very low prices—right in the face of a rising market, too, sounds like a paradox, and a money losing one at that, but it is merely an illustration of this store's foresightedness in the placing of orders far ahead at lower prices in the anticipation of such a rise in the price of cotton as has occurred—and still occurring by leaps and bounds. But it is only a question of time when we too shall have to pay more, so you'd best take advantage of this sale.

COLUMBUS

The Muddy Water Town Has Vision of Cheaper Gas.

Senator Carl Wood, of Seymour, has introduced a bill in the senate to regulate the price of gas in cities of 6,000 population and up. The provisions of the bill are that gas shall not cost the consumer more than seventy-five cents per thousand feet. The bill was aimed primarily to benefit Seymour, it is understood, but it would also affect Columbus.

The only gas the local consumers get is the product of the Columbus Gas Light & Coke Company and that costs $1.25 per thousand for illuminating gas and $1 per thousand feet for cooking and heating gas. The gas all comes from the same tank as far as that is concerned but the price is made lower for heating and cooking purposes because more of it is used in a gas stove than in a gas lamp. The local company is working under a franchise from the city which runs for several years yet and that franchise forbids the company from charging more than $1.25 per thousand. If the Wood bill becomes a law the price of gas will take a drop here.—Columbus Republican.

The Taylor Lectures.

On next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, February 11, 12 and 13th, at 7:30 p. m., Rev. E. O. Taylor, A. M., D. D., of Boston, Mass., a man with both a national and an international reputation as a lecturer, will speak at the First Methodist Church in this city. His subjects as announced are: "That Boy of Yours," "Microbes and Men, or Chemistry of Alcohol," "A Glass of Beer Analyzed" (illustrated), "Citizenship in the Light of Christ and Paul," and "God's Message in Science to Thinking Men." Three of these lectures will be selected for delivery here. This is a course of lectures on Good Citizenship and Scientific Temperance. Rev. Taylor is a text book author and an able man. He is brought here by different churches and his wide reputation and the announcements that will be made in the various churches tomorrow will bring out a large audience to hear him on next Monday evening. He will bring out his own audiences after he is heard once. His discussions are purely educational, simple enough for the child and absolutely devoid of partisan politics. Those having the lectures in hand are anxious to have a crowded house at each of these lectures. No admission will be charged.

The Thaw Case.

At this stage of the Thaw trial it seems likely that the defendant will go acquit; not because of any sympathy with his crime or admiration for his weak, worthless character, but because from what he has been elicited on the witness stand concerning Stanford White he was a man whose extinction was a service to society. The genius of this great architect in no wise condoned his offenses; indeed it throws them into stronger relief. He was, from the testimony of the woman in this miserable case, a dangerous beast who ought not have been allowed to run at large.—Marion Chronicle.

Old Time Table.

James Jones, brother of L. W. Jones showed the REPUBLICAN an old Madison & Indianapolis Railroad time table that he prizes very highly. This time table is dated Nov. 27, 1854, and gives the time in detail of all trains on the first railroad built in Indiana. It tells just where and at what time the passenger train meets "first freight train," "second freight train," "first hog train," "second hog train" and "third hog train." That was in the days when Madison was the greatest hog market in the Ohio valley and when exclusive "hog trains" were run over that road. In those days it took a passenger train four hours and for y minutes to run from Madison to Indianapolis, a distance of 86 miles. The rules governing the running of trains are on the reverse side of the time card and to a train man of the present they sound funny to say the least. Mr. Jones also possesses a copy of the ninth annual report of the officers and directors of the Jeffersonville Railroad Company which was for the year 1859. This report covers only fifteen pages of a small pamphlet. A report of today is very much different from this one and covers many more pages. As Mr. Jones worked on this division of the Pennsylvania years ago, these old records are decidedly interesting to him.

DIED.

WENTE.—Everett Wente died at his home in the White Creek neighborhood Friday evening at 9 o'clock. Age 77 years. He was an uncle of Wm. H. Wente, of Indianapolis, formerly of this city and who travels for the Ahlbrand Carriage Company. He leaves a widow, one son, four daughters and three grand children. The funeral will occur at the residence and at the German Lutheran Church at White Creek some time Monday conducted by the pastor, Rev. Baade. Burial at White Creek Cemetery.

TRADE CONDITIONS

Have Been Materially Affected by the State of the Weather.

New York, Feb. 9.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says: First effects of the past week's widespread winter weather have been to dull trade at most markets, to quiet spring demand, retard collections and in sections accentuate the already congested railway situation. Some sections, particularly the South, report benefit to trade in winter goods and footwear.

Taken as a whole, the business booked by wholesalers for January and the elapsed portion of February is fully equal to, and in some markets and staples, notably cotton drygoods, far in excess of last year's undeniably large business. Building activity has been checked by weather conditions. After-effects of the iron workers' strike of last year are witnessed in checked operations at the metropolis. Some few Western cities report more conservatism in buying by manufacturers and by railroads, who have decided to forego some projected improvements in view of high costs of labor and material, and also because of talked of legislative or executive action adverse to corporations.

Great Opportunities.

"Why," said the ant, in surprise, "I thought you had retired for the winter. Where are you going with all that baggage?"

A STUNNING BLOW

Was Given the Liquor Interests by Indiana House.

Indianapolis, Ind., February 9.—The liquor interests of Indiana received the hardest blow the legislature has dealt them since the enactment of the Nicholson remonstrance law several years ago, when the house passed to engrossment the Ganiard "blind tiger" bill in practically the same form as it came from the senate a week ago. The action placed the measure beyond the reach of its opponents, as they cannot amend it further without unanimous consent of the members, which will never be given. After the opponents of the bill had tried by adroit methods to tack on some amendments that would leave loopholes for the liquor dealers, one of its friends suddenly moved that it be passed to engrossment. The vigorous protest of its opponents, who demanded more time for discussion, went unheeded. They were overwhelmed by a vote of 52 to 37. There is no likelihood of the bill being defeated, as the result showed that a majority of the members are determined to pass it. The measure was framed by the Anti-Saloon League and is regarded by it as one of its most important achievements. It is the most drastic plan of the kind ever submitted in Indiana, as it provides that the possession of liquor where no license is held, is prima facie evidence that it is being sold illegally. No option is left as to the punishment for violations of the act. Conviction on any of the charges under it means imprisonment as well as a heavy fine. Every club that serves or sells liquor to its guests or members will be classed as a "blind tiger" and compelled to take out license or stand for prosecution. The measure will put a severe crimp in the business of the brewers, as it prohibits them from wholesaling beer to any private consumer in quantities of less than five gallons. The officials of the Anti-Saloon League predict that under this new law they will be enabled to drive out all illegal liquor dealers.

Unable to arrive at a definite conclusion as to whether the proposed legislation regarding second-class mail matter would be beneficial or injurious to their interests, the Indiana Democratic Editorial association, in the business meeting at the Grand hotel, decided to leave the question in the hands of the committee on resolutions for investigation and report at the meeting to be held next summer, in the meantime asking that Indiana editors write to their representatives in congress protesting against the passage of the bill. The association voted to accept an invitation extended by Thomas Taggart to hold the summer meeting at French Lick, as Mr. Taggart's guests. The remainder of the session was taken up with the reading of papers and the discussion of questions of interest to the country editor and to the election of officers for the ensuing year. A. B. Crampton of Delphi was elected president of the association; Clay W. Metsker of Plymouth, secretary, and S. Paul Poynter of Sullivan treasurer. Among the resolutions adopted the editors "congratulate the people on the near approach of Democratic ascendancy in the nation and state." Memorial resolutions were adopted on the death of Reuben Daily of the Jeffersonville News and John R. Simpson of the Paoli News, both long and prominently connected with the association.

The house has paved the way for the enactment of the Bland two-cent fare bill, which was passed by the senate last week. The Joyce and Broley two-cent fare bills were recommended for indefinite postponement. They were similar to the Bland bill, which will be passed in its present form. The Democratic members will be forced now to vote for a Republican bill to carry out their platform pledges for two-cent fares. Representative Fruenticht's bill changing the method of taxing interurban and streetcar lines so that those in the city limits will be taxed by local instead of the state board, was recommended for indefinite postponement. The measure was intended to give the city of Fort Wayne more revenue from the streetcar companies, but it affected the entire state.

Indiana Stone for Panama Canal.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 9.—Word from Washington is to the effect that the government is considering the proposition of using Indiana oolitic limestone for the Panama canal. The stone is to be used in constructing various docks, terminals and intermediate stations. The quarry owners of this district are preparing to organize a committee to push the matter. It is figured that such a contract would take at least half the output of all the quarries in the oolitic belt for the next eight years.

Doomed to a Living Tomb.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 9.—Seven miners are entombed in No. 19 colliery of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company at Wanamie, and there is little hope of rescuing any of them. Fire broke out on the fourth lift and the entombed men who were caught in the lower lifts cannot be reached until the flames are extinguished. The fire is burning fiercely.

To Cut Out Racing News.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 9.—The senate has engrossed a bill which makes it unlawful for a newspaper or other publication to print the results of horse races or the name of any horse taking part in such contests. The penalty is a fine of not more than $1,000 or less than $100.

UP TO date the shippers are getting the best of the railroad attorneys before the railroad committees of the House and Senate but their fight is not all ended as the railroad men will endeavor to prevent the passage of the bill in its present form.

SMILY N. Chambers, one of the prominent lawyers of Indiana, died at his home in Indianapolis Friday night. He was United States District Attorney for Indiana during President Harrison's administration. His former home was at Vincennes. He was a member of the famous "Per-simmon Brigade" and was well known in G. A. R. circles.

THE insurance investigation at Indianapolis reveals some decidedly shady transactions. It has brought out the fact that the old line companies resorted to the medium of an alleged insurance journal to denounce Indiana companies. According to evidence they subsidized the journal and its editor. Then to put a stop to this sort of thing an Indiana Company set about to get this "expert" insurance editor on its side and he was willing if the pay was satisfactory. He was for or against according to the salary. The revelations of the past two years have made the people skeptical of all insurance companies and it is no wonder.

America's Greatest Playground

NEW YORK CITY has the greatest amusement resort in the world in its Coney Island, which stands unchallenged as the most wonderful example of the development of the modern idea of popular attractions presented at prices rendering them available to all classes. Coney Island is unique in many respects, but it was the first place in the world where first class attractions were ever opened to the public for an admission price of ten cents. The attractions have steadily improved in quality at Coney, but the price remains the same.

Coney has not always been the resort it is to-day, its earlier history was not of the sort that makes cities great or adds to the development of good citizenship. Twenty years ago there were shows there, ten cent shows, but they were not characterized by any attempt to elevate the public or amuse the better classes. At one time it was essentially a tough resort where crooks thrived and politically it was the rottenest of Brooklyn's many disgraceful districts. The public and an improved public sentiment is largely responsible for the changes that have been wrought, but much can be credited to a new generation of amusement producers who have selected Coney Island as a headquarters.

Fire and the Courts have assisted in the change, for several great conflagrations wiped out the worst section of the place, and the courts sent corrupt police officials, who aided in the corruption of the place, to Sing Sing. But all the fires and all the courts could not have accomplished as much as Thompson & Dundy wrought when they opened Luna Park's gates to the public, and set an example in producing attractions of real merit surrounded by artistic structures from designs by architects of national repute.

From a place where many people went, but were careful to refrain from mentioning the fact, it is now a place where everybody goes and talks enthusiastically of the visit for weeks afterwards. The enthusiasm is warranted for at Coney Island can be seen the most complete example of the results possible by the scientific application of electricity to art. The famous White City, Chicago World's Fair, afforded a splendid spectacle, the Buffalo Exposition marked another advance, but at Luna Park and Dreamland the builders have brought the art of electrical illumination to the highest degree of perfection it ever has known. Combined, they have been classed as the eighth wonder of the world, and the distinction is merited.

When Luna Park was built it was said it never would pay its owners, and the undertaking was certainly a great risk as it involved the expenditure of nearly two million dollars before a single cent was paid in at the gate. But the people came and Luna Park has been made bigger every season, and it has created a new standard in the amusement world. When the builders of Dreamland announced their intention to build another great amusement resort, almost at Luna Park's doors, persons, who thought they knew, said there was no room for two great places at Coney Island, but time has demonstrated that there is no limit to this respect, for these two great spectacles have paid dividends that seem almost fabulous, and they have helped build up a number of minor attractions.

The only amusement places that suffered by their presence were the tough places, and the halls where questionable shows had prospered. The clean attractions have made good, and the public has been awakened to the opinion that clean attractions of real artistic merit were what they wanted. In Luna Park and in Dreamland there has never been an attraction offered for public favor that depended on a questionable feature to make it a paying proposition. Many of them have been of the type that breeds patriotism and a love of home and country and all of them relied on some new and novel idea in the development of the great sciences for its most striking features.

The great events in the world's history have been kept to the fore, and in all this has been an element of education that is too important to be ignored. The conceptions of genius have found an opportunity at Coney Island, and art and science have been called upon with lavish hands to make every detail appear in its best light.

The greatest spectacle of modern times was probably the Indian Durbar at Delhi, when the wealth and splendors of the Empire of India was marched in review in honor of the coronation of King Edward. Thompson and Dundy realized the universal interest in this event and at Luna Park presented a copy of the spectacle which for completeness in every detail and accuracy of reproduction excited the praise of the artistic world and elicited applause from hundreds of thousands of delighted people who nightly filled a vast amphitheatre devoted to the spectacle.

Just what this feature of one season at Luna Park cost its producers may never be known, but they made it pay and constantly improved and elaborated it during the seasons it was produced. Attractions on the order of "Creation" and "The Deluge" cost a small fortune, and the original production of "Fighting the Flames" required the services of a regiment of men, women and children. The fire fighting force was led by one of the most famous of New York's fire chiefs, and under his charge a body of trained athletes gave the most realistic and spectacular performance of its kind that was even given.

While Thompson & Dundy's Luna Park and Dreamland have been doing their work in the reformation of Coney Island, their efforts would have been seriously impeded if it had not been for the presence of the number of attractions covering a somewhat smaller space, but embodying all of the elements of novelty and ingenuity that characterized the best features of either Luna Park or Dreamland.

Principal among these attractions is Mr. E. J. Austen's "Johnstown Flood," which has been one of the real features of Coney Island for several seasons. It was first produced at the Buffalo Exposition and later removed to Coney Island.

land. Mr. Austen is one of the pioneers among amusement producers of the present generation. In 1885, he brought out that wonderful and realistic panorama.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Oliver Dumbarton spent a wakeful, restless, and troubled night, vivid and scaring thoughts she was powerless to banish, picturing the past with its troubles, dwelling on the present with its seemingly impenetrable mystery, showing the future with its dread possibilities. But when at last sleep came it was profound, nor did she wake until late in the morning. The fog which had hung mournfully over the city the previous evening had not yet quite lifted, and at first thought the dull gray atmosphere was the light of early dawn. A glance at her watch showed her it was past 10 o'clock, and she touched her bell.

As if awaiting the signal, Veronica immediately entered, hastily yet noiselessly crossed the room, and flinging one arm round her mother's shoulders, kissed her.

"Oh, mother, mother," the girl murmured with a sob in her throat. The terror dominant in Veronica's voice struck its hearer, in whose mind immediately arose a foreshadowing of pain, a foreboding of horror.

"What is it, child?" she asked, scarcely able to frame her sentence.

"Something has happened."

"Ah, I know; he is dead," Oliver Dumbarton replied in a tone of despair.

"Not Mr. Bostock," said Veronica, quickly.

"No. Who then?" her mother asked hurriedly, a load lifted from her heart, her eyes fixed questioning upon her daughter.

"Valerius," repeated Oliver Dumbarton incredulously, the truth not yet reaching her mind.

"He was found dead this morning on a couch in his study. His name came here to tell us, but I would not disturb you. It is terrible, terrible, mother dear."

A low moan was the only reply Oliver Dumbarton gave. But no sooner had she realized the sudden death of one whom she had seen in health and strength a few days previously than her active mind began to form surmises, her vivid imagination to shape fears. After a long pause she said:

"This is pitiful poor Valerius. Tell me, Oliver, Veronica?"

"It is thought—it is feared—but nothing yet known. A letter lay on his desk directed to George Coris, and on the table a bottle which had contained chloroform."

Presently she asked in a voice that was almost a whisper:

"Is there no letter for me?"

"I don't know, mother. I have been so scared, but I'll go and see."

Left alone in the semi-darkened room, her grief and pity for Valerius, together with the fear which lay behind them, overcame her, and she began to sob and cry hysterically. Seeing this, Veronica, on her return, could not keep back her tears, and they both wept bitterly for some time. When eventually the girl was able to control herself and had partially succeeded in soothing her mother, she produced an envelope directed by Valerius and sealed with red wax, bearing his monogram. And the curtains having been drawn and the blinds raised, Oliver Dumbarton with trembling hands opened the letter and read there the confession she had dreaded and anticipated.

Meanwhile all was confusion in the house where the body of Valerius Galbraith lay; servants going from room to room with a bewildered air; policemen going to and fro; the chilling, stagnating atmosphere of death weighing upon all. And among those who came and went was Mackworth, who, not without disappointment, realized that the case which had puzzled him had been brought to an end without his aid or intervention.

But the previous night the inspector had returned from Paris, whither he had gone, to ascertain for himself if Valerius had been there on the night of the Hoxton Road tragedy. Without much difficulty Mackworth had learned of Galbraith's absence from his hotel on that date, and armed with this fact had hastened to London, resolving further to trace the movements of the man who it now seemed possible was connected with Dumbarton's death.

With morning Mackworth found his labors unnecessary. Valerius had escaped, leaving a letter which acknowledged his death.

When in due time a jury had returned a verdict declaring Valerius Galbraith guilty of the death of David Dumbarton and the innocence alike of Oliver and George Bostock was established. That the latter had confessed to a murder of which he had not been guilty was set down by the press and received by the public as a consequence of the delirium from which he had suffered, self-accusation being a not uncommon occurrence with those whose minds were temporarily affected by drink, fever or accidents.

As time passed George Bostock's consciousness, at first faint and flitting, gradually strengthened and retained its hold for longer periods; and five days after the last operation he was enabled to answer questions. His replies, which were always monosyllabic, seemed delivered with reluctance, and it was thought advisable not to tax his mind by addressing inquiries, or enlightening him regarding what had happened until his brain regained more of its former strength.

Again and again Headwick had felt prompted to tell him of Galbraith's confession, but that he feared to disobey orders. But when one afternoon, while seated beside the patient, the latter suddenly asked:

"How is she?"

"Headwick, knowing to whom he referred, assured him she was well. A look of contentment that relieved its weariness passed across Bostock's face. Then his friend, bending over him, said, in a low voice:

"We know now that you made a mistake; that you never killed Dumbarton."

Bostock looked at the speaker fixedly, anxiously wondering, but made no reply.

"You understand what I say?" Headwick asked.

"Yes; but why do you think I was mistaken?" he whispered.

"Because the man who was guilty has confessed and given proof of his crime."

"Who was it?"

"Valerius Galbraith."

George Bostock closed his eyes; his mind could bear no more and consciousness forsook him. Throughout the remainder of the day and the following night his symptoms were feverish, but next morning he was calmer, and his friend not being there he eagerly asked the nurse for particulars regarding Valerius Galbraith's confession. And they being given him, he remained silent and thoughtful, pondering over what he had heard, dwelling on the mystery that had surrounded the tragedy, or the part he had felt prompted to take when believing himself dying, and on the speculations which had perplexed him on recognizing that he was destined to recover.

And meanwhile Oliver Dumbarton, whose health had been undermined by the cruel suspense, terrible anxiety and mental strain which the tragedy of her husband's death and its consequences had laid upon her, broke down the moment perfect relief was assured her. Prompt and careful treatment alone saved her from brain fever, but utter prostration, mentally and physically, remained, and at times she despaired of ever regaining her former condition.

So soon as she was able to leave her room she was ordered to the Riviera, there to remain until winter had passed, so that when George Bostock had left the hospital in February she was still abroad and had by that time almost recovered her strength.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

In March Mrs. Dumbarton was back in town, but not to the house or to the district which was fraught with such terrible associations and memories for her, for Quinton Quave having volunteered to find her a new dwelling he had by lucky chance found a quaint delightful house in Kensington to let, which he had immediately taken for her.

And here, in this house which welcomed her by its brightness, its air of old-fashioned solidity, its promise of

It was in the early summer that Quinton Quave, looking shy and nervous, came to tell Oliver Dumbarton that, just having been taken into partnership by his father, he was now in a position to marry.

"I heartily congratulate you, Quinton," she said warmly.

"Oh! thank you, thank you," he exclaimed, feeling fresh courage to continue. "And you know, I hope, there's only one girl I wish to marry."

"I should be shocked to hear you intended to marry two or three," replied Oliver, who could not keep from laughing.

Quinton laughed likewise.

"I fear I am rather foolish," he stammered; "but what I meant to say was I love no one, I never have loved any one, but Veronica—and—"

"She knows this, I suppose?" Mrs. Dumbarton said.

"Oh, yes, I'm sure she does; at least I strove to let her know that I cared for her above every one else."

"And do you think she loves you?"

"I hope you won't think me conceited when I say I fancy she does. And that's the reason I've come to ask your permission to marry her."

Oliver Dumbarton leaned back in her chair, a pensive look upon her face as she remembered her own early marriage.

"I hope you have no objection to me; that you don't dislike me," Quinton said, alarmed by the silence which had succeeded his last speech.

"No, indeed, Quinton, I like you very much."

"You are awfully good."

"But you are very young, and Veronica is younger still."

"We grow older every day, you know," he said, as solemnly as if he were for the first time asserting a great truth.

"As yet you are a mere boy, and she a mere girl, and neither of you can be expected to know your own minds."

"Oh, Mrs. Dumbarton," he replied, hurriedly, and with a tone of reproach. "Pardon me, but you make a mistake. I am quite resolved to marry Veronica and no one else. You don't understand how I love her."

She smiled at his earnestness.

"And I don't think Veronica will ever marry any man but me," he added, proudly. "She told me she wouldn't."

"You have settled it between you?"

"Practically. We felt sure you, who have always been so good and kind, would not stand in the way of our happiness."

"Nor shall I, Quinton; but I want to make sure your love is not fancy. It would be a terrible thing for the or both of you to wake some day to the knowledge that what you thought was reality turned out to be illusion."

CHAPTER LXXXX.

It was in the early summer that Quinton Quave, looking shy and nervous, came to tell Oliver Dumbarton that, just having been taken into partnership by his father, he was now in a position to marry.

"I heartily congratulate you, Quinton," she said warmly.

"Oh! thank you, thank you," he exclaimed, feeling fresh courage to continue. "And you know, I hope, there's only one girl I wish to marry."

"I should be shocked to hear you intended to marry two or three," replied Oliver, who could not keep from laughing.

Quinton laughed likewise.

"I fear I am rather foolish," he stammered; "but what I meant to say was I love no one, I never have loved any one, but Veronica—and—"

"She knows this, I suppose?" Mrs. Dumbarton said.

"Oh, yes, I'm sure she does; at least I strove to let her know that I cared for her above every one else."

"And do you think she loves you?"

"I hope you won't think me conceited when I say I fancy she does. And that's the reason I've come to ask your permission to marry her."

Oliver Dumbarton leaned back in her chair, a pensive look upon her face as she remembered her own early marriage.

"I hope you have no objection to me; that you don't dislike me," Quinton said, alarmed by the silence which had succeeded his last speech.

"No, indeed, Quinton, I like you very much."

"You are awfully good."

"But you are very young, and Veronica is younger still."

"We grow older every day, you know," he said, as solemnly as if he were for the first time asserting a great truth.

"As yet you are a mere boy, and she a mere girl, and neither of you can be expected to know your own minds."

"Oh, Mrs. Dumbarton," he replied, hurriedly, and with a tone of reproach. "Pardon me, but you make a mistake. I am quite resolved to marry Veronica and no one else. You don't understand how I love her."

She smiled at his earnestness.

"And I don't think Veronica will ever marry any man but me," he added, proudly. "She told me she wouldn't."

"You have settled it between you?"

"Practically. We felt sure you, who have always been so good and kind, would not stand in the way of our happiness."

DIED.

LAUSTER—John Lauster died this morning at five o'clock at his home on N. Ewing street after suffering about two weeks with paralysis. Age 62 years, 3 months and 21 days. He had a severe stroke of paralysis two weeks ago today, caused by the bursting of a blood vessel on the brain. This was followed by another stroke last Wednesday morning. For the last day or so he was unconscious most all the time.

Mr. Lauster was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, October 19, 1844 and came to America with his parents when he was about ten years of age. There were six children in the family, two of whom still survive. Henry Lauster, of near Rockford, and Mrs. Barbara Wingerter, of Lawrenceburg. The family remained in Cincinnati only a few years till they moved to Ripley county where Mr. Lauster remained till he was twenty-one years of age when he came to Jackson county and engaged in the timber business. On January 14, 1872 he was married to Miss Lena Huber, of near Spraytown. After engaging in business at Spraytown for a number of years he was engaged in business at Rockford for about five years. He came to Seymour 26 years ago and went into the grocery business in the Pfaffenberger block. After conducting this business successfully for 21 years he retired five years ago, or on October 19, 1901. He leaves a wife and four children living, one having died at the age of five months. They are: Mrs. D. L. Prall, Pearl Lauster, John Edwards Lauster (deceased), Mrs. Fred Abie and Miss Georgia D. Lauster, who is a student in Indiana University. There are also two grand children living and a number of other relatives. He has been successful in business and owns considerable town property besides several hundred acres of good land.

The funeral services will occur at the residence Monday afternoon at 1:30 and at the German Lutheran church at 2 o'clock, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Philip Schmidt. Burial at the Riverview cemetery.

Persons wishing to view the remains can do so by calling at the residence Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock or Monday morning from 9 to 12.

From The Far West.

James Barton Adams, the noted dramatic critic, says, concerning Capt. Jack Crawford, the noted Poet Scout, "For many years I was closely associated with him in the rough life of the West in its most turbulent days, and in his life as a public entertainer. I have heard him entertain the cowboys in camps, on the roundups, long before he ever dreamed of platform entertainments. To these rough but warm-hearted riders of the range he would recite his own characteristic western verse, bristling with humor and sentiment and sing his songs of the West amid hearty laughter. I have always regarded him as the most magnetic entertainer on earth, a broad claim, but one I feel fully justified in making." At Society Hall, Feb. 13, 1907.

Other Lighting Systems.

In addition to the large number of merchants and other business men which were mentioned yesterday as having installed lighting systems of their own to take the place of gas or electric lights Hopewell's skating rink and Vande Walle's music store have each installed the National hollow wire lighting system. Of the twenty-four local business men who have installed their own lighting systems, everyone, so far as we have learned, is well pleased.

A Busy Western City

In a clipping from a southwest newspaper, we notice that the receipts at the postoffice at Tulsa Ind. Terr., for the first fifteen days in January were $2,000 and that eleven employees are kept buried by the magnitude of the mail. At the time the 1900 census was taken, which was less than seven years ago, Tulsa had a population of but 1390 or 295 less than the town of Brownstown had at the same time. Yet in a few short years the town has grown into a city and the postoffice receipts have grown till they are far greater than they are in the city of Seymour! The postal receipts have increased more than 25 per cent in the past twelve months. Our Seymour people who are locating at Tulsa have certainly selected a lively place in which to settle. Everything you see in the newspapers about Tulsa is something about its rapid growth and development and yet with the number of railroads that are being built in there and the other favorable surroundings, this growth is sure to be permanent.

Hoosier Harness Company.

The Hoosier Harness Company have about completed their new building and the remodeling of the old city building which, together with the old jail, has been connected with the new building. For about two weeks they have been moving machinery and setting it up in the new location. Some of the workmen began up stairs on hand work about Wednesday of this week but none of the machinery has been started up yet. It is stated that a large amount of new machinery will be purchased and placed in the building in the near future. The floor space is just about double what it was in the old building, or perhaps a little more, and this will make it possible to increase their capacity considerably, as they expect to do, and yet make them less crowded than they have been heretofore. Within the next two weeks they hope to be pretty well straightened up and have most of their machinery running and a good force of men employed.

Would List Shareholders.

Representative Edwards has introduced in the house one of five bills which originated with the state tax commission. It provides that shares of capital stock of a bank or trust company whether organized under the laws of Indiana, the United States or any other state, shall be assessed in the township, city or town where the concern is located, and that the shares shall be assessed at the rate of other property. The bill requires that the president or cashier shall make out a statement under oath giving the name and residence of each shareholder, and the state tax commission is to determine the true value of the stock. The bill contains an emergency clause.

Old Tax Receipt

Clayton Downs, one of the well known farmers over in Spencer township, Jennings county, was going over some old papers a few ago and ran across an old tax receipt that interested him very much. This receipt reads as follows:

Spencer Township, Feb. 5, 1851

Received of Joseph L. Traylor, $3.58 in full of his state, county, school and road tax for 1851 on 160 acres of land $175 personal.

SAMUEL M. STORY,
Tax Collector.

Mr. Traylor was Mr. Downs' grandfather and he now owns and lives on one of the 80 acres on which the above taxes were paid. Mr. Downs says the taxes are decidedly different in Jennings county now as the rate there is one of the highest in the state. Samuel Story, the tax collector named above, was a brother of Mrs. Godfrey Winkler, of this city.

How They Do It.

A representative of one of the largest mail order houses in Chicago recently gave some of his experiences in pushing the business at a meeting of newspaper men. He said that the mail order business depends entirely upon advertising. He said the mail order houses take the local paper and direct special efforts to communities where the merchants are not persistent advertisers. If he found that any line of business in any town or city was not well advertised, he said they flooded that territory with their literature and always with satisfactory results.—Ex.

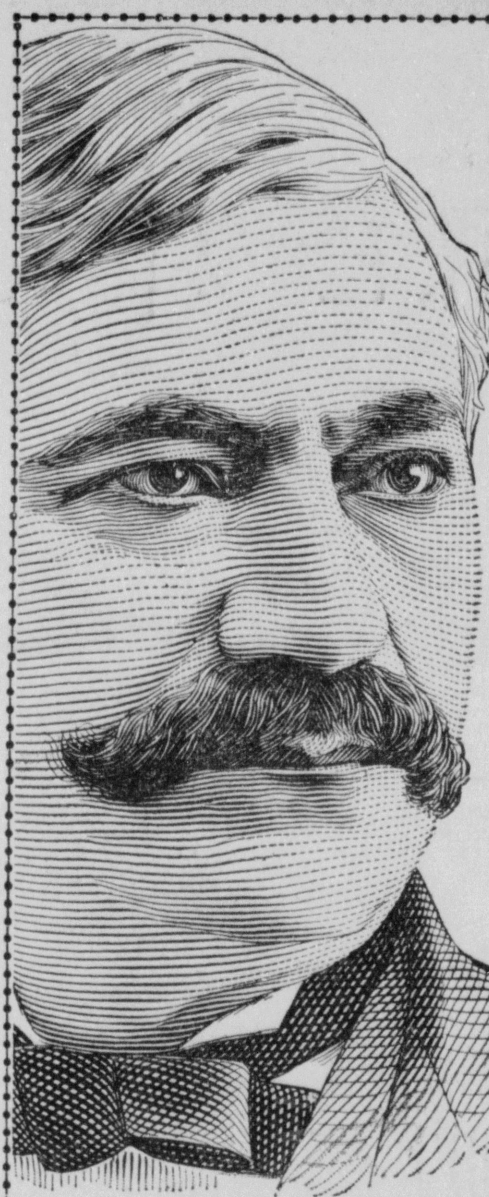

Ice Cream Will Be High

The ice cream makers are having their troubles with the pure food law. The law provides that ice cream must contain 14 per cent butter fat to satisfy the whims of the commission. Ice cream makers say that this demand is unreasonable and to meet it they say it will be necessary to advance the price of cream nearly fifty per cent. Soda water dispensers, state that the amount of ice cream used in their beverages this year will dwindle to a microscopic sample—a hint—a phantom of what has been.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON COMMENDS PE-RU-NA.

"I have used several bottles of Peru-na and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

OTHER REMARKABLE CURES.

Mr. Jacob L. Davis, Galena, Stone county, Mo., writes: "I have been in bad health for thirty-seven years, and after taking twelve bottles of your Peru-na I am cured." Mr. A. E. Kidd, well-known architect, 5477 Jefferson Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have had catarrh over half of my life. I tried nearly every catarrh remedy advertised, beside a great many physicians' treatments, all of which failed. I had heard and read of Peru-na and decided to try it. I have taken seven bottles of it and weigh 172 pounds."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, R. F. D. No. 2, Shelby, Oceana Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peru-na advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

Stop Drinking!

Orrine Destroys all Desire for Drink. How to "Swear Off."

One out of every seven drinking men swear off religiously at New Year's but how few of the good resolutions are carried out. WHY NOT?

Because the continual drinking in the past has weakened the nerve cells of the human system until the craving for drink has fastened itself so strongly that temptation cannot be resisted.

Thousands of persons who really want to quit the use of whiskey and beer realize that they cannot do so without medical help, yet they cannot afford the time or perhaps the money to go to a sanatorium. Happily a cure for drunkenness has been discovered which is to be taken at home and costs less than the average drinker will spend in a day for drink.

Mothers, wives and sisters can give Orrine without the patient's knowledge. Orrine No. 1 is to be given secretly. It is perfectly tasteless, colorless and odorless. Orrine No. 2 is for those willing to take the remedy. Either form costs but $1 per box. Mail orders filled on receipt of price.

Cure Effected or Money Refunded.

A registered guarantee in every package. Orrine is sold by the leading druggist in nearly every town and city, if not obtainable write to the Orrine Co., Inc., 1907, 15th St., Washington, D. C.

GROOMING COUNTS

But it cannot make a fair skin or a glossy coat.

Women with good complexion cannot be honestly. Creams, lotions, washes and powders cannot make a fair skin. Every woman knows that the skin out of her complexion is the animal's right condition. The horse get his coat by the use of his feed and his grooming. The ladies will see the point.

Lane's Family Medicine

Is the best preparation for ladies who desire a gentle laxative medicine that will give the body perfect cleanliness internally and the wholesome complexion that produces such skin as painters love to copy.

MAY AVERT A WAR

America and Mexico Seeking to Pacify the Spirits of Nicaragua and Honduras.

THAT WAR IS INEVITABLE

Is the Opinion Held in Diplomatic Circles Throughout the Republics of Central America.

This View, However, Is Not Entertained in Washington, and Conciliatory Movement Is Under Way.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Carrying out the wishes of the state department that a couple of American naval vessels be kept in Central American waters, the navy department has dispatched the gunboat Marietta to Greytown, in addition to the cruiser Chicago, which has been sent down the west coast to Acapulco, Honduras, so that within a day or two there will be an American warship on each side of the scene of the threatened trouble.

It is stated that the purpose of sending these ships to Central America is similar to that which inspired the order to the Marblehead last year, namely, to have a ship at the disposal of the American ministers if they should find it necessary to travel up and down the coast, as communication by regular channels is limited. Also, they will of course protect any American property that may be endangered.

Consul William E. Alger at Tegucigalpa, Honduras, communicated with American Minister Combs in Guatemala City (he being also accredited to Honduras) that the opinion at Tegucigalpa was that war between Honduras and Nicaragua was almost inevitable. The officials here, however, do not take any such pessimistic view, and believe that the combined efforts of Mexico and America will, without offending the pride of the Central American republics, result in convincing them that their differences can be settled without recourse to arms.

Without admitting the accuracy of the statement from the City of Mexico that at the instance of the Washington government the Mexican diplomatic representatives in Central America had been instructed to bring pressure upon the governments to which they were accredited, it was said at the state department today that correspondence had been exchanged between the department and the Mexican government to this end. The Washington government regards itself as bound under the treaty of San Jose and the Marblehead pact to offer good offices to prevent warfare between the Central American republics, and as Mexico is under similar obligations, the two are trying to arrange a program whereby Mexico will act for both countries.

Attention is called to the fact that Nicaragua was not a party to the San Jose treaty, assuming that the settlement of disputes between Central American republics by arbitration was already sufficiently provided for in the treaty of Corinto, concluded several years before. This fact, however, does not, in the opinion of the officials here, relieve Honduras and Salvador from responsibility to abide by the San Jose treaty, and if Nicaragua prefers to regard the treaty of Corinto as operative, then she cannot resist an appeal by Mexico, supported by the United States, to adjust the present trouble by arbitration. Meanwhile it is probable that both sides and particularly Nicaragua will be requested to desist from any increase of armament or concentration of forces on the borders.

Isabelle Urquhart Dead.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Isabelle Urquhart, the actress, who has been ill at the homeopathic hospital for two weeks, died suddenly of internal hemorrhages. Miss Urquhart was playing the part of Aurora with Arnold Daly in "How He Lied to Her Husband," when she was taken ill. She was to have appeared here, but when she reached the city her condition was so serious that she was taken to the hospital where she was operated on for appendicitis.

Pension Bills Rushed Through.

Washington, Feb. 9.—A new high record in private pension bills was made by the house yesterday, when 725 bills were passed in an hour and a half. The naval appropriation bill carrying $95,426,000, was then taken up. The senate passed the Indian appropriation bill, which has been under consideration all the week, after which the army appropriation bill, carrying a total of $81,500,000, was taken up.

An Orderly Revolution.

Buenos Ayres, Feb. 9.—Further reports of the revolution in the city of San Juan, show that the movement was not accompanied by bloodshed or serious damage. The revolutionists remain in possession of the city. Intervention by the federal authorities has not been called for.

Castro in Trouble.

New York, Feb. 9.—The long-planned insurrection of Gen. Paredes against President Castro of Venezuela has begun, according to Nicanor Bolet, the local representative of Gen. Paredes.

BUSINESS COLLEGES ARE FAILURES

In small cities and towns, because:

1. There is not a sufficient population to support a GOOD school;
2. Such schools are usually conducted by persons who are NOT qualified, or who make it a practice to travel about and defraud their patrons;
3. There are few if any opportunities for their graduates to secure employment in such localities;
4. The THOROUGH business colleges are located in the larger cities and are conducted by persons who are qualified;
5. The graduates of business colleges in small cities or towns can not secure employment in large cities when thrown in competition with the THOROUGH graduates of high-class schools, as business men have no time to experiment with incompetents.

Therefore, be wise. Send for the finest 68-page catalogue ever issued by a commercial school, before deciding to throw away your money on a worthless training at some cheap school.
